

Site Types

MAIN - The main campus. There is only one main campus at a university.

INST_SITE - A temporary instruction unit, apart from main campus, that provides a limited range of instructional programs or courses, in facilities not owned by the institution. It also includes sites of a permanent nature, which have instruction but have not been approved by the Board of Governors.

SPSITE - A site that provides services of an educational or community outreach nature which are other than instruction, do not lead to a degree, in facilities not owned by the institution.

SPC - A special purpose campus. Special purpose center is a unit of university, apart from main campus, that provides certain special, clearly defined programs or services, such as research or public service, and reflects a relative permanent commitment by the university for the foreseeable future, not an occasional, time-limited, or transitory activity, in facilities which are owned least or jointly used. Programs and courses leading to a degree are not typically offered.

OTHER - No instruction or outreach.

TYPE I - A type I campus is a university operation that has obtained and continues to maintain an enrollment level of more than 2,000 student FTE in courses which lead to a college degree. (Wide range of instruction).

TYPE II - A type II campus is a university operation that has obtained and continues to maintain an enrollment level of 1,000 to 2,000 student FTE in courses which lead to a college degree. (Moderate range of instruction).

TYPE III - A type II campus is a university operation that has obtained and continues to maintain an enrollment level of at least 300 but less than 1,000 student FTE in courses which lead to a college degree. (Limited range of instruction).
